

W. F. Wertheim

Evolution and Revolution

The Rising Waves of Emandpation

Penguin Books

Contents

Foreword g

PART ONE: EVOLUTION

1. The Vicissitudes of Evolutionary Theory 17
 - i. The Wave of Anti-Evolutionism in the West 17
 - ii. Multilinear Evolutionism 24
 - iii. Implicit Evolutionism 28
 - iv. Reappraisal of the Concept of 'Progress' 32

2. Direction and Process of Evolution 35
 - i. The Criteria of Progress 35
 - ii. The Emancipation Principle 40
 - iii. Cooperation as a Companion of Emancipation 48
 - iv. Adaptation and Conflict 54
 - v. Mental and Material Factors 58
 - vi. The Dialectics of Diffusion 60

3. The Time Differential 63
 - i. Romein's 'Dialectics of Progress' 63
 - ii. Service's 'Law of the Evolutionary Potential' 71
 - iii. Reappraisal of Romein's and Service's Theories 75
 - iv. Modernization and the Dialectics of Progress 78
 - v. Modernity and After 84

4. Towards a Dynamic Model of Society 86
 - i. Wanted: A Sociology of a World on the Move 86
 - ii. Shortcomings of Structuralism: Reification of Society 89

6 Contents

- iii. Max Weber's Criticism of Reification: The Concept of Kollektivgebilde 91
- iv. The Integrationist Model of Society 94
- v. Subjective Values as Determinants of Hierarchy 99
- vi. Counterpoints and Conflicting Value Systems 105
- vii. Social Structure and Plurality of Value Systems 110
- viii. Counterpoints and Collective Action 113
- ix. Conflicts and Conflicting Values 117
- x. Legal Order and Social Structure 119

PART TWO: REVOLUTION: GENERAL ASPECTS

- Introduction 123
- 5. Concept and Types of Revolution 124
 - i. Revolution and Rebellion: Some Preliminary Remarks 124
 - ii. Revolution and Counter-Revolution 127
 - iii. Violence and Non-Violence 137
 - iv. Internal and External Causes 144
 - v. Some Types of Revolution 146
 - vi. World Revolution 153
 - vii. Internal and External War 155
 - viii. Export of Revolution or of Counter-Revolution 158
 - ix. The Historical Setting of Revolutions 163
 - x. Revolutions in Modern Times 165
 - xi. Revolutions in Earlier Centuries 169
 - xii. Religion and Revolution in History 171
- 6. The Genesis and Course of Revolutions 175
 - i. Theories on the Revolutionary Cycle 175
 - ii. Revolution as an Integral Element of Social Change 177
 - iii. The Genesis of Revolutions: Some General Observations 179
 - iv. Situational Aspects 181
 - v. Economic Conditions 183
 - vi. Social Conditions 190
 - vii. Political Conditions 200
 - viii. Accelerators 202

- ix. Psychological Aspects 206
- x. Some General Conclusions as to the Genesis of a Pre-revolutionary Situation 211
- xi. The Process of Revolution 214
- xii. The Crumbling of Political Authority 216
- xiii. Revolutionary Strategy 218
- xiv. The Effects of Revolutions in Terms of Emancipation 219
- xv. The Ultimate Effect of Revolutions 221

PART THREE: REVOLUTIONS IN THE WORLD OF TODAY

- Introduction 227
- 7. Conditions and Trends in the Third World 229
 - i. General Survey 229
 - ii. Economic Conditions 231
 - iii. Social Hierarchy 233
 - iv. Patronage and Other Protective Institutions 236
 - v. The Erosion of Institutions or Social Values 241
 - vi. Political Situations under Populism 245
 - vii. Prospects for Revolution or Counter-Revolution under Populism 249
 - viii. Political Situation under Military Dictatorship 254
 - ix. Prospects for Revolution under Military Dictatorship 258
- 8. Prevention of Revolutions 265
 - i. Introductory Remarks 265
 - ii. Welfare Measures or Panaceas? 267
 - iii. Practical or Psychological Approach? 282
 - iv. Make-Believe 285
 - v. Religion as a Diversion 286
 - vi. Other Diversions 288
 - vii. Repression: Right Hand and Left Hand 290
 - viii. Conclusion 293
- 9. Dissensions on Revolutionary Prospects and Strategy 296

8 Contents

A. Divergent Perspectives on Revolution	296
i. The Soviet 'New Look'	296
ii. Soviet View of India and South-East Asia	299
iii. The Chinese Outlook	301
iv. Implications of Discussions on Revolutionary Prospects	303
B. Divergent Revolutionary Strategies	308
v. The Cuban and the Chinese Model	308
vi. Focismo or Party Leadership	310
vii. Temporary Alliances	311
viii. Guerrilla and Peasants	314
ix. International Solidarity	317
10. Social Revolution and After	319
i. Economic Achievements	319
ii. The issue of Freedom in the Soviet Union	322
iii. The Issue of Freedom in China	329
iv. The Thermidor Issue in the Soviet Union: Embourgeoisement	331
v. The Thermidor Issue in China: Cultural Revolution	333
vi. Long-Term Results of the Cultural Revolution	342
vii. Towards a More Egalitarian Society: Beyond Yankee City	347
Epilogue: Repetition and Uniqueness in an Open-Ended Universe	353
i. The Concept of Causality	353
ii. Uniqueness and Repetition	356
iii. The Delusions of Mechanistic and Deterministic Explanations	362
iv. Randomness and Novelty	366
v. Determinism and Voluntarism in the Science of Man	370
vi. The Limits of Causality in the Science of Man	373
vii. Prediction of Revolutions	374
Notes	378
Index	410